Prayer for Hurricane Season

O God, Master of this passing world, hear the humble voices of your children. The Sea of Galilee obeyed your order and returned to its former quietude. You are still the Master of land and sea. We live the shadow of a danger over which we have no control: the gulf, like a provoked and angry giant, can awake from its seeming lethargy, overstep its conventional boundaries, invade our land and spread chaos and disaster. During this hurricane season we turn to you, loving Father. Spare us from past tragedies whose memories are still so vivid and whose wounds seem to refuse to heal with the passing of time. O Virgin, Star of the Sea, Our Beloved Mother, we ask you to plead with you Son in our behalf, so that spared from the calamities common to this area and animated with a true spirit of gratitude, we will walk in the footsteps of your divine Son to reach heavenly Jerusalem where a stormless eternity awaits us. Amen.

Bishop Maurice Shexnayder

From the Pastor's Desk

Every now and then, I find it necessary to say a word on the topic of “private revelation”. The reason is that I run across situations where people are being greatly distressed, usually by warnings and threats, for no good reason. So here we go: If you have any interest in apparitions or private locutions or any of these extraordinary manifestations, the first thing you should do is read the book by Fr. Benedict Groeschel, CFR, entitled “A Still, Small Voice”, published by Ignatius Press. This book will give you the foundation you need to truly benefit from what is authentic and ignore what is false and self-serving.

It does happen that on occasion, individuals or groups of individuals have extraordinary experiences of God’s grace and presence, which manifest as visions or as voices or other types of messages. Some few of these, such as Sr. Margaret Mary’s image of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, have greatly benefitted individuals and the Church, usually by focusing attention on some aspect of our faith. It must also be stated that the vast majority of alleged apparitions, etc., are eventually shown to be false, sometimes even when the purported visionary was totally sincere.

A proper understanding of “private revelation” begins with the Church’s teaching on public revelation. The core of public revelation is the Scriptures, especially as they relate to God’s self-revelation in Christ Jesus. This revelation is preserved and expanded upon by the Tradition that is communicated to us through the magisterium of the Church. Here is a key point: In Christ, God has already revealed everything that is necessary for salvation. There is nothing lacking in the revelation that is Christ Jesus, and we look for no “new revelation” before the end of time.

“Private” revelation, on the other hand, usually comes through individuals, and at its best will highlight or focus attention on some aspect of public revelation. When the Church “approves” of any such message, all she says is that there is nothing here that is contrary to faith and morals. In other words, if you find this helpful, then feel free to make use of it. At the same time, there is no duty to believe any message that comes through private revelation, except insofar as that message echoes the truths of the faith already revealed and received. “Private” revelations can never make known anything necessary for salvation that has not already been revealed in Christ Jesus. So if a visionary claims a message calling us to repent, this is true because Jesus himself called us in the Gospels to repentance.

In this day and age, the internet makes it possible for truly bizarre and unhelpful “revelations” to receive wide dissemination. Don’t be taken in or frightened off. Use what is truly good, and discard the rest.

M. Keith
